Wm. Russell and others against Samuel Cary and others. The substance of the allegations were that Cary and others purchased a silver mine and that they became provisional shareholders through fraudulent representations. The plaintiffs ask that Cary be declared to hold the sum involved as trustee for them. Cary in his answer admitted some of the allegations and denied the others. He filed two interrogatories requiring each plaintiff to answer for himself. He also filed a demurrer. Demurrer to one of the interrogatories sustained and as to the other overruled. Moses Goldsmith against B. Henkwein and others. An action against the Market-master and two hucksters for a provisional injunction. Refused. Isaac McCombe against The Land and Lake Wap Mill Company. City of Cincinnati against Commissioners of Hamilton County. Several questions of practice arose upon a motion filed in this case. The City sued the Commissioners for $108,931. Motion was made by the defendants to require the plaintiff to make the petition more definite and certain. They ask, first, that the city may be required to set out the individuals from whom this sum was collected as non-duplicate taxes; secondly, that the petition should set out when these sums were paid over to the commissioners. ## A Strange Historical Fact.

The greatest ammunition that we have heard of lately was used by the celebrated Commodore Coe, of the Montevideo navy, who in an engagement with Admiral Brown, of the Buenos Ayres service, fired every shot from his locker. "What shall we do, sir?" asked the first lieutenant. "We've not a single shot aboard—round grape, canister and double-headed all gone." "Powder all gone, sir?" asked Coe. "Yes, sir; got lots of that." "We had contended hard, eh?" asked Coe. "Round Dutch one—for dessert at dinner to-day; don't you remember it?" said Coe.

"I ought to; I broke the carving knife in trying to cut it, sir."

"About two dozen; took 'em from a drawer."

"Will they go into the eighteen-pound?" "By thunder, commodore, that's the ideal I'll try 'em," cried the first lieutenant. And in a few minutes the fire of the old Santa Maria (Coe's ship), which had ceased entirely, now opened, and Admiral Brown's ironclad was shot flying over his head. Directly one of the shot struck his mainmast, and as it did so it scattered in every direction.

"What the devil is that the enemy are firing?" asked Brown, but nobody could tell.

Directly another came through the port and killed two men who stood near the main striking the bulwarks, burst into splinters.

"By Jove, this is too much!—this is some new Paixham or other. I don't like 'em at all," said Brown.

And then, as four or five more came ship through his sails, he gave the order to fill away, and actually backed out of the fight, receiving a parting broadside of Dutch cheese.

This is an actual fact.

Napoleon III had immense veneration for the founder of his house. An artist who painted his portrait shortly before his death, says: "He spoke with the liveliest interest of the various portraits of his uncle Albert, at the same moment placing in my hands an oval miniature in an exquisite setting, remarking: 'This I prize so highly that I always carry it about me.' Perceiving that it bore evidences of having been painted from life, I ventured to ask His Majesty its history. The answer was 'an excellent portrait of a characteristic one.' 'Its history,' replied His Majesty, 'is extremely short; the Emperor from whom it was painted gave it to my mother, and she gave it to me.' The Emperor's reference to his mother, the beautiful Hortense, reminded me of a circumstance I had met with somewhere relative to his childhood—how he was wont to hide himself beneath the long and luxuriant hair of which she was so famous; and upon referring to the story he replied with a somewhat saddened smile: 'I remember it distinctly, and it seems but yesterday. She was, indeed, the most beautiful of women, and the best of mothers. This, pointing to the third largest of his portrait wall, 'was my wedding ring, and this,' pointing to another on the same finger, 'was the Emperor's'."

It seems really decided at last that James Gordon Polo Bennett and Miss Twenty-thousand-dollar Trouseau May will marry. They must like each other.

Tourists will find the American House, Boston, a most convenient point from which to visit places of interest. It contains a large number of suits of rooms, which may be secured by post or telegraph by families traveling.

The GRAND UNION HOTEL, opposite the Grand Central Depot in New York, has several special advantages over its rivals. It is so near the depot that the traveler is spared all annoyance and expense of carriage, baggage and expressage here, while its location is such that street car and stage lines radiate from this point to all parts of the city. It has elegantly-furnished rooms, has all the best improvements, and is run on the European plan. Travelers visiting New York, or on their way to or from the CENTENNIAL, will find this hotel par excellence in every respect. It is under the management of W. D. GARRETT, and has become one of the most popular hotels in the City of New York.

Nothing can be fairer than Mr. Daniel F. Beatty's mode of doing business, and which evinces his confidence in the superiority of his instruments over all others. He warrants his pianos and organs for six years, gives a five days' test trial, and refunds money if purchaser is not satisfied. By this means his instruments are brought into competition with others, and invariably come out victoriously. Address all communications to Daniel F. Beatty, Washington, Warren County, N. J., U. S. A. See his advertisement.

True Merit Will Win.
A few years since the proprietors of Dr. Morris' Syrup of Tar, Wild Cherry and Horehound introduced it here. It was not puffed but sold on its merits. Our people soon found it to be reliable, and already it has become the most staple and popular pulmonary remedy in the market. It quickly cures the worst coughs, colds, croup, bronchitis, asthma and consumption. Nothing acts so nicely in whooping cough, and it is so pleasant that children readily take it. Containing no opium, or other dangerous drug, it is as safe as it is sure. Trial size, 10c; large size, 50c and $1. Sold by JOHN KESSELY, Sixth and Walnut streets, and W. H. Adderly Sixth and Mound streets. Also agents for Prof. Parker's Pleasant Worm Syrup, which never fails. Pleasant to take, and requires no physic. Price 25c.

Diarrhea, Asiatic Cholera, Cholera Morbus, Summer Complaint, and other Diseases that produce a relaxation of the Bowels, whether on Children or Adults.

It is a scientific prescription prepared with the greatest care, and we recommend it with the utmost confidence as the best remedy known for the diseases mentioned.

Every family should have a bottle of this Cordial ready for immediate use. A single dose of only a few drops in the early stage of these diseases will often check and cure the disorder.

This is no quack nostrum, but the prescription of a regular and successful city physician of extensive practice and reputation; the prescription has been used for some years in our own families with invariable success.

During the late war it was given to many of our friends and volunteers in the army, who were suffering from Diarrhea, caused by change of water, unhealthy and improperly cooked food, and in every case it was used with the best results.

Travelers, who are subject to so many changes of water and diet, will find this a valuable article. The vials are small and strong, and can be carried without inconvenience.
